MANY INTERESTING things, much strange and beautiful country and many interesting newspaper read traveling on the Seaboard and Pennsylvania railroads from Miami to New York.

Two days and one night you ride from the flaming flowers of the loaded cocoanut trees, of Florida through Georgia's cotton fields, where plants often as high as a man's shoulders, on through the picture machinery of Washington and on to the real North at Philadelphia.

ONE-CROP condition does not exist anywhere in the South except the Florida line into Georgia south of Savannah, you will see on one side of the track the snowy white cotton field beside it and a rich pig corn field, on the other side of track a young orange grove with stacks of hay piled up between the rows of trees, which have grown until the trees almost touch. Then and adjoining the orange a big field devoted to sweet potatoes and next to that a cow pasture.

There in a half-dozen fields is something that human beings in this land need—cotton for clothing, forage for health beef and milk and succulent potatoes for bulk and starch.

FLORIDA claims the world's most fertile soil. Egypt or Mesopotamia not excepted and proves it. The Fall with the world's biggest sweet potato or "yam" described by the editor of the Clermont Press grown by E. W. Pope.

The potato is 35 inches, almost a yard long wide in proportion and long enough to wrap clean around a baked "possum."

OFF TO THE NORTHWEST. Nebraska reports a return of the prairie hen. Once so numerous as to be almost a pest, the "prairie chicken" had practically disappeared. Two men on horseback would drag a long wire between them along the prairie brush, a third man walking behind them shuttering the birds as they flew up. Better than Scotch grouse, partridge or any other game bird, the prairie hen would be brought back in millions with a little common sense.

THE SPEECH that Calvin Coolidge made for the Republican party is more important than those who have read every word of that. You will hear in mind the Coolidge statement that our tariff and trade regulations in general are more favorable to the rest of the world than their tariffs and regulations to us. About two-thirds of our enormous imports and all our exports are free of duty.

It is important for American workmen to remember that to get rid of the tariff would make them compete on even terms with European labor that is paid with cheap money also with Chinese and Japanese labor, paid so little that you might call it slave labor, but only sufficient to feed the worker.

STUDYING birth statistics, A. F. Dixon shows that the child of a father 20 years old has fifty times better mental chance than one whose father is under 45. A father of 60 gives his child a ten times better chance than if the father is under 40.

The father of Pitt, who was Chancellor of the Exchequer at 21 was Prime Minister at 25, was 51, and Samuel Johnson's father was 68.

People knew about this more than 100 years ago. Children inherit both physical and mental strength from their mothers, mental strength principally from the father.

WETS SELECT FAVORED LIST OF CANDIDATES

Mouser, Fletcher Classified as Dry by Anti-Prohibition Groups.

REPORT ON FULL TICKET

White and Ingalls Both Listed as "Satisfactory" to Repealists.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 13—Three Ohio anti-prohibition organizations today announced a "statement of facts as to the position of candidates for United States senator, U. S. representatives and governor on the subject of national prohibition."

The statement came from the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, the Crusaders and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

The statement said that Gov. George White, seeking reelection, and his Republican opponent, David S. Ingalls, are "satisfactory."

Bulkley for Repeal

Senator Robert J. Bulkley, Democrat, seeking to succeed himself, was listed as favoring "outright repeal" while his Republican opponent, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman was put down as favoring "a substitute constitutional amendment which would repeal the eighteenth amendment, with power to regulate resting with the federal government."

The four candidates for two congress-at-large seats were listed as for repeal. The candidates are Stephen M. Young and Charles V. Truax, Democrats and L. T. Palmer and George H. Bender, Republicans. Truax and Bender were pointed as "formerly dry."

Favor Outright Repeal

In the statement the three organizations said they were pledged to "outright repeal of the Eighteenth amendment that complete control over the liquor problem be returned to the various states. We are opposed to any substitute amendment to the United States Constitution which would merely replace the Eighteenth amendment by another one which would continue federal meddling in state liquor control, and any combination of federal control would perpetuate the troublesome 'wet and dry' question in every congressional and presidential election. We have had too many years of bitter experience in this connection to permit this evil to continue longer. We want it out of federal elections. Any substitute amendment would keep it in."

The statement asked Ohio voters "to vote only for congressional candidates—U. S. senate and house—who are pledged to outright repeal."

Candidates Listed

Of the 22 district congressional candidates on the Democratic side, the statement listed 19 as for repeal, with one a "complete dry record," one as standing on the Republican platform and one as for submission.

The 21 Republican candidates in the districts were listed as five for repeal, seven for submission, eight as "dry" and one standing on the Republican platform. There is no Republican candidate in the twenty-ninth district.

Democratic candidates in the first seven districts were set down as repealists. In the eighth Brooks Fletcher was listed as having a "complete dry record." In the next half dozen districts, the office seekers were all listed as for repeal.

Those Republican candidates listed as "dry" or with "complete dry records" are in the fourth, sixth, eighth (Congressman Grant E. Mouser of Marion), tenth, twelfth, thirteenth, fifteenth and eighteenth districts.

At headquarters of the anti-saloon league here it was said that S. P. McNaught, the superintendent, would announce the league's list of candidates early next week. This list will cover all state candidates and those entered for senator and congress.

Marion Forces Join in Federal Job Program

Industrial Rehabilitation Plan Outlined at Conference.

SUPPORT IS ASSURED

Marion's Backing Promised After District Leaders Are Heard.

Marion industrial forces last night joined in a nationwide movement backed by the federal government to provide work for men and to help obtain loans for deserving industries unable to borrow working capital locally.

An industrial rehabilitation program outlined by the national banking and industry committee recently formed at a White House conference will be carried on here by a committee headed by Carl F. LaMarche, treasurer of the American Malleable Castings Co., who this week was appointed to head the movement in this county.

The committee's program will be to urge the replacement of obsolete and worn out equipment and machinery in industrial plants, business places and in every branch of commercial activity where possible.

Foundation Laid

The foundation for an aggressive campaign to stimulate replacements and to aid industries who lack working capital was laid at a meeting in the Marion City club last night when a group of Marion industrial men heard E. M. Olin, Westinghouse executive of Mansfield and A. D. Caddell, secretary of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, outline the nationwide program in detail. Olin is chairman of an industrial rehabilitation subcommittee of the Ninth subdistrict of the Fourth federal reserve district, of which Marion county is a part, and Caddell is his assistant chairman.

Assurance that Marion will do its part in the movement was given by Chairman LaMarche at the conclusion of talks by Olin and Caddell.

Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, chairman of the Council of 100, pledged his personal assistance in carrying on Marion's share of the movement, and offered to help bring forces of the council into play to further it.

To Name Committees

Committees and divisions to carry on various phases of the program in this city will be appointed and organized by Chairman LaMarche this week or early next week, he said. The campaign will begin as soon as this organization is completed.

Caddell pointed to the latent forces which could be brought into activity to stimulate the replacement of machinery and equipment, principally in industries. He cited numerous examples where installation of modern machines had lowered production costs, and in Fear That State Legion Head Will Not Recover; Wife at Bedside.

By The Associated Press

WARREN, O., Oct. 13—Fears that Col. Ralph Cole, state commander of the American Legion, may not recover from injuries received in an automobile accident, increased today.

With a fractured vertebra in his neck, Col. Cole continued through last night in a critical condition, and with no signs of improvement.

Doctors said there was slight chance for recovery unless the colonel's condition improves within the next two days.

Col. Cole, a resident of Findlay and one of the founders of the Legion, was hurt in the accident near Parkman, Tuesday. Taken to the hospital, it was found the fractured vertebra had caused paralysis of the lower portion of his body.

Mrs. Cole came here yesterday to stay at his bedside, while doctors bent every effort to save his life.

SEEK AGREEMENT ON LIMA, KENTON RATES

Gas Company and City Officials Confer with Commission on Charges.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 13—Conferment to iron out rate differences between the West Ohio gas company and the cities of Lima and Kenton, in which the company operates, were held with the state utilities commission here today.

Rate ordinances upon which the company appealed to the commission and which are to expire soon, formed the basis of the discussion.

The ordinances passed by the city of Kenton expires within a few weeks while that for Lima will be in effect for six months longer.

The commission, hoping to forestall an appeal to it from the new ordinance, invited both company and city officials here.

City officials first were to confer with the commission. They were elected with members of the commission for hours then an hour. Neither they nor the commission would discuss what took place at the meeting.

Immediately after the city officials left to return at 1:30 to hear the company's proposals, the gas company officials met with the commission.

City Manager Fred Roth of Lima, E. E. Wood, assistant city attorney of Lima and Harry Kramer, W. Leipsic, L. B. Sherman, ... would not discuss ... Kenton.

HOOVER LAYS CORNERSTONE

President Takes Part in Ceremony at New Supreme Court Building

OTHER NOTABLES SPEAK

Chief Justice Hughes Pictures Edifice as Sign of U. S. Confidence.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—President Hoover journeyed today toward capitol hill to wield the trowel at ceremonies surrounding the laying of the cornerstone for the first home this country has ever built for its supreme court.

The structure, which will cost approximately $9,000,000 when completed, is rising on a seven acre site selected by the late William Howard Taft, just north of the library of congress.

The cornerstone was laid under the auspices of the American Bar association, which is holding its annual meeting in Washington.

Among the speakers were Charles Evans Hughes, chief justice of the United States, John W. Davis, former solicitor general and Guy A. Thompson, president of the bar association. Chief Justice Hughes said: "The republic endures and this is the symbol of its faith."

"We are in a time of keen distress and widespread misgiving," the chief justice said. "It is a world of unrest. The potential strife with lawlessness has assumed new aspects and has brought society to new and serious tests of its ability to protect itself. Few, if any, have the gift of prophecy.

"This edifice, however attests confidence. It suggests permanence—not the permanence of stone and steel, but of an element in this respect, of particular formulae, but of a conception of the basic needs of our organized society."

Davis, former Democratic presidential nominee, said that the day of interpretation of the Constitution "is not over."

Among objects in a box placed in the cornerstone was a photograph of the late William Howard Taft, whom Hughes succeeded. Taft's influence is credited with having much to do with the authorization by congress in 1926 of the building.

Plans for the new building, seventeen in design, were drawn by Cass Gilbert, architect. It probably will be completed in time for the court to hold its 1935 term there.

LAWYERS HEAR HOOVER APPEAL

President Calls on Bar Association To Defend Government of U. S.

URGES PURGING OF COURTS

Nation's Chief Sees Need of Simplified Procedure in Law Administration.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Members of the American Bar association today were summoned by President Hoover "to defend our system of government against reckless assaults by designing persons."

This message was given them last night when Mr. Hoover addressed a large gathering of the law profession in Constitution hall at a special session of the fifty-fifth annual meeting of the association. The President said:

"It is your task to prove again what none knows better than you, that the very citadel of the rights of the poor against the oppression of rulers and against the extortions of the rapacious is the judicial system of the country, and that the impregnable apex of that system is the supreme court of the United States."

Created By Washington

President Hoover was preceded by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes. He entered the chamber with Mrs. Hoover and Guy A. Thompson of St. Louis, president of the association and was greeted with applause by an audience of attendants estimated at 3,000.

Chief Justice Hughes welcomed the President with the greeting "we" tender to him our rising appreciation of profound respect and devoted attention." At the conclusion, the chief justice thanked the President "for his contribution" on behalf of the association.

"Our form of government is on trial in the eyes of millions of our citizens," President Hoover said. "Economic storms of unparalleled magnitude have wrought our people, and in their distress some are tempted to lay the blame for their troubles upon the system of government under which they live.

Give Danger

"It can be a dangerous thing, if wise and trusted men fail to explain to the people how often in history the peoples interests have been betrayed by false prophets of a millennium, promised through seductive but unworkable and disastrous theories of government.

"The menace is doubled by the fact that these vain allurements are today being offered to our harassed people by men of public reputation in economics and even by men in public life."

Scarlet and Grey Warriors Adopt "Do or Die" Attitude in Practice.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Oct 13—Football fans who witnessed the Indiana-Ohio game last week and who will be back for the Michigan encounter Saturday, will see a vastly improved eleven when the Buckeyes take the field.

A spirit of dogged determination has taken hold of the squad and the players have been going about their practice sessions the last few days with a do or die attitude, something that was entirely lacking before the 7 to 7 tie with the Hoosiers

The players realize that this game will either make or break their season and with this in mind they have accomplished more this week than in twice the same time previously

The work for the remainder of the week will take on an offensive touch. Coach Williaman and his assistants have labored over time drilling the squad in defensive tactics and from now until Friday night offense will be the main topic Williaman said he contemplated no changes in his lineup with the possible exception of Keefe in place of Hinchman at halfback Hinchman is nursing a bruised back

Arrangements were completed yesterday to broadcast a play by play account of the game over the National and Columbia systems.

Gauthier Shifts Lineup for Wittenberg Conflict

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O, Oct 13—One hundred and thirty-five pounds of speed and quickness in the person of John Matthews of Ashland, O, sophomore back, may get his big chance in Ohio Wesleyan's homecoming game with Wittenberg in Selby stadium here Saturday.

Matthews, the smallest man on the squad, has proved a will o the wisp to tacklers in practice sessions this week On Wednesday he eluded would be tacklers time and again and once staged a great 70-yard run before being run out of bounds

The fleet back likely won't start the game, but once he gets into the contest he can be expected to give a good account of himself

Coach George Gauthier kept the downtown coaches guessing Wednesday as to his starting lineup against Wittenberg when he shifted his entire team Floyd Kennow of Delaware and Ray Harley of Ashtabula replaced the veteran ends, Ray Bennett of Dayton and Don Lantz of Canton and Nelson Moore of Detroit was at halfback in the place of Wilmer Dickerson, veteran

When the kickoff opens Saturday's game, however, Gauthier probably will use all the experienced men he has, fans believe, in an effort to win the Battling Bishops' first Buckeye conference game of the season The sophomore talent will be used only as replacements, it is thought.

Chuck Vandervort of Portsmouth, who proved a sensation against Ohio State and Syracuse, appears to be a fixture at quarterback.

GRINS from the GRID

BY O. W. "RED" SEVERENCE.
(Written for The Associated Press)

The Army football team prides itself on being a rough, hard-driving outfit but Major E. L. Sasse, head coach at West Point, tells a yarn in which a humble porter on an overnight Pullman made the squad feel like a group of playful high school boys.

During an overnight rail trip for one of the big games on the 1931 schedule one of the players slipped from his berth in the wee, small hours and collected the street shoes of the entire team. Hiding them, he turned in again and was sleeping blissfully next morning when the shoe-less team awoke.

Shouts, complaints and threats went up as the hunt began, and it was toward noon before John, the Pullman porter, located the hiding place. Meanwhile there had been a continuous uproar as the disgruntled players turned the car inside out in their search

Impressed by the noise and bustle, one of the younger players said to the porter, "Gee, John, this Army crowd is a pretty tough bunch, isn't it?"

"Ah, no sah," Major Sasse heard the veteran porter reply, "last week I carried the Notre Dame team on this car, and dey collected the shoes, too.

"But dey didn't hide 'em, no sah, dey threw 'em off the train"

ILLINOIS MINER SHOT BY STRIKE PICKETS

Six National Guard Units Aid in Keeping Order at Taylorville.

By The Associated Press

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Oct. 13 — Jke McGuire, a miner, was shot in the face and breast by pickets who called him from his home at Hewittville today.

Badly hurt by the blast of shotgun slugs, he fired into the crowd. The firing brought National Guardsmen and tear gas bombs helped the soldiers disperse the crowd.

The shooting of McGuire signalized the return of the many pickets arrested yesterday and released on their promise to go home.

They returned to picket duty early this morning and the six National Guard companies—the largest number ever assembled to keep order here—were kept busy clearing the highways with tear gas and smoke bombs.

PAROLED CONVICT RETURNED TO PEN

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 13 — Francis E. (Mack) Bush, paroled Ohio penitentiary convict, involved in a gun fight here last week, started back to prison today, under heavy guard.

His parole forfeited, Bush will serve 18 years more of his previous sentence on a charge of robbing a Cleveland bank. He was sentenced in 1925, and paroled several months ago.

Bush was ordered returned to the penitentiary by the state parole board, after Newton D. Baker, president of the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice, protested the board had not investigated properly before releasing him.

CONFLICTING STORIES TOLD BY WITNESSES

Sweatbox Murder Trial Brings Out Contrasting Pictures of Victim..

By The Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. Oct. 13—Alternate pictures of Arthur Maillefert as a brutally treated youth and as a surly convict were drawn by witnesses as the trial of two former guards for murder in his death in a Florida prison "sweatbox" went into its tenth day today.

Lonnie Foster of Pensacola, Fla., a fellow prisoner with Maillefert, who was found dead in a sweatbox with a chain about his neck, June 3, at Sunbeam prison camp, testified yesterday the young convict was once whipped three minutes for refusing to take a second half-pint dose of castor oil.

Several defense witnesses testified yesterday that Maillefert said he would kill himself rather than serve his sentence of nine years.

Licking County Farmer Says Pair Burned Him with Hot Poker.

By the Associated Press

NEWARK, O., Oct. 13—Accused by Perry Fowler, 62-year-old farmer, of torturing him in an unsuccessful attempt to make him reveal hidden money, two men, both his neighbors, were under arrest here today.

The men, Henry Rose, and his son Ralph, were accused by Fowler in an affidavit, with having burned his feet and hips with a heated poker. Fowler said they also beat him on the head and stomach with a club, inflicting internal injuries.

The injured man, attacked in his home near Johnstown Tuesday night, refused to tell his assailants whether he actually had any money. After they fled, he stumbled to the home of another neighbor and notified the sheriff.

MILLS SPEAKS IN CHICAGO TONIGHT

Treasury Head's Address Expected To Carry Political Dynamite.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 13—Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills arrived in Chicago today at the end of a 3,000 mile campaign tour for a speech tonight which Republican headquarters said would "contain the most dynamite of the campaign so far."

The Republican national committee arranged for him to speak tonight at the Chicago coliseum. His address will be broadcast.

Mills has toured from coast to coast, making numerous speeches. His campaigning, consisting mainly in explaining the benefits which he said had resulted from Republican protective tariff and criticizing what he terms "unfair attacks on President Hoover," has been regarded by Republican leaders as some of the most effective of the Hoover-Curtis drive.

World visible supplies of wheat showed 21 047 000 bushels increase for the week making the total 435-

that sharp falling off both in Rusthis week was significant. The falling off was held to contradict forecasts that Russian wheat would be sold in larger quantities to Eu

He placed the muzzle of a shotgun at his heart and pulled the trigger with a broom handle The body was found by his son in law John Erwin, lying in a down stairs bedroom

The funeral will be conducted Saturday at 10 a m at the King s Creek Baptist church Burial will be made in the King s Creek cemetery beside the grave of his daughter

Gargled Constantly... Bad Breath Still

How could I understand why nothing helped—until a friend suggested, "It might be your stomach!" And it was—clogged bowels that invariably spread poisons through the system and kept the gas and stomach acids, sick, sour and sleepy, billousness, etc. What a difference when he took KRIT (Nature's Remedy) Regular bowel action thereafter He felt peppy, keen as mustard And breath became pure as spring air. That s because KRIT eliminates the entire intestinal tract for normal food

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver

Dr Edwards, a well known physician in Ohio perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels which he gave to his patients for years

Dr Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c 30c 60c —Adv

The Campaign Puzzle

Study Past State-by-State Votes in Making Your Forecast

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the twelfth of 36 articles showing how states voted in the 1928 presidential election and pointing out developments since).

North Carolina, a member of the "solid South," usually has been counted upon by its Democratic leaders to produce a majority of between 50,000 and 100,000 votes for their candidates for state or national offices.

This tradition was overturned in 1928 when the state gave Herbert Hoover a majority of more than 62,000. The prohibition views of Alfred E. Smith and activities of anti-Smith Democrats were regarded as influencing the result. In the same year O. Max Gardner was elected governor over Herbert F. Seawell (R) by a vote of 362,009 to 289,435.

In the senatorial election of 1926, Josiah W. Bailey (D) defeated George M. Pritchard (R) by a vote of 324,393 to 210,781.

In the Democratic primaries this year Robert F. Reynolds, a wet, defeated Cameron Morrison, dry, for the senatorial nomination by a majority of 107,000. Local issues, as well as prohibition, were injected in the campaign.

The prohibition issue and economic programs of the parties have been in the foreground in the current campaign.

North Carolina has 13 electoral votes, one more than in 1928.

Get Up Nights?
Make This 25c Test

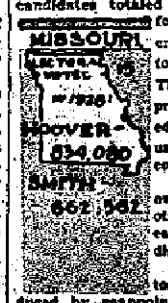
Use this easy bladder physic to drive out impurities and excess acids which cause irritation that results in leg pains, backache, burning and getting up nights. BU-KETS, the bladder physic, containing buchu, juniper oil, etc., works on the bladder pleasantly and effectively, similar to castor oil on the bowels. Get a 25c box (a grain size) from your druggist. After four days, if not relieved or getting up nights go back and get your money. You are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. Sold by Ungerleider's Drug Stores.—Adv.

Missouri, once considered a solidly Democratic state, has voted for Republican presidential candidates in the last three elections, and in 1904 and 1908. Since 1916 it has elected Republican governors, with Democrats making inroads in state contests in "off" years.

Opposition to Alfred E. Smith in some quarters within his party marked the 1928 campaign, in which prohibition was a major issue. The moist sympathies of Missouri's two largest cities has made this issue always a live one in the state.

Missouri has had no election for governor or senator since 1928. In the congressional elections of 1930 the state elected 17 Democratic and four Republican representatives. The delegation elected in 1925 had included six Democrats and 10 Republicans.

In the primaries of this year, Republican votes for all gubernatorial candidates totaled 361,613. Votes for all Democratic candidates totaled 613,772. The Democratic primaries included several unusually heated contests.



Prohibition has overshadowed other issues in early campaign discussions.

Missouri's electoral vote is reduced by reappointment from 18 to 15.

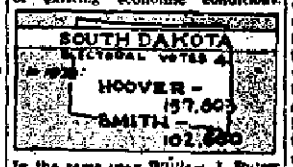
South Dakota has not given its vote to a Democratic candidate for president since 1892, when it gave Bryan a majority of 183 votes. In 1912 its vote went to Theodore Roosevelt, progressive.

The presidential campaign of 1928 was fought out over the issues of prohibition and the continuance of existing economic conditions.



In the same year William J. Bulow (D) was reelected governor for his second term. He was the second Democratic governor in the state's history.

In the state elections of 1930, Governor Bulow defeated William H. McMasters (R) for the senate with 106,317 votes to 99,586. In the same year the Republicans recaptured the governorship, Warren E. Green receiving a majority of 13,889 in a contest involving state issues.

The economic programs of the two parties, with especial regard to farm relief proposals, have claimed general attention in the current campaign.

The expression of Senator Peter Norbeck (R) upon the presidential candidates was awaited with the expectation that it might influence many of his followers.

Reapportionment has reduced South Dakota's electoral vote this year from five to four.

"THE NIGHT MAYOR" WITH LEE TRACY TO PLAY AT PALACE

The advance "dope" on "The Night Mayor," which will show Friday and Saturday at the Palace, smacks of the private life of a dapper former mayor of New York. And Lee Tracy seems the type of young man to essay the leading role in this picture.

Evelyn Knapp, who is engaged to Donald Cook, is Tracy's leading woman. Miss Knapp was a school teacher in Nebraska before entering pictures. Prominent in the supporting cast are Donald Dillaway in the role of a reporter, Warren Hymer the mayors' valet and bodyguard, Eugene Pallette, Vince Barnett, Barbara Weeks, Astrid Allwyn and Gloria Shea.

On the stage for the two-day bill will be Montana Meechy's Cowboys from WAIU. The Cowboys appeared here last winter on a benefit program for the Marion Chapter, Disabled American Veterans. The company goes in for roping, shooting, knife throwing, whip popping and playing the music of the cowboys of Montana.

Gambier Woman at 40th Meeting

BUCYRUS, Oct. 13—Among the notables attending the annual convention of the International Order of King's Daughters and Sons, especial mention is due Miss Bessie Blake of Gambier, O., small unassuming grey haired lady, who is, it is perhaps safe to say, the best loved of all King's Daughters in the state of Ohio.

Miss Blake is celebrating two special occasions this week. She observed her seventy-eighth birthday Wednesday and also is celebrating her attendance at her fortieth annual King's Daughters convention. With only two or three exceptions, Miss Blake has attended every state convention of the organization since her entrance into the work more than forty years ago.

In honor of the occasion of Miss Blake's birthday, she was presented with a lovely corsage of roses and baby breath by In-As-Much circle of Bucyrus, at the Rockledge Inn luncheon at St. John's Reformed church Wednesday noon.

position of opposition to the bonus was clear, but he called upon Bettman, his Republican opponent, to "cease all evasion" and tell the voters whether he is for or against.

Cash payments of the bonus, Bulkley said, would cost $2,300,000 to discharge an obligation not due until 1945.

This proposed payment, he said, "must be considered as a demand directly competing with the very necessary demand for advancements to relieve absolute destitution.

"I have felt it necessary to criticise the President for certain failures and evasions, but with respect to this particular issue, I feel no doubt that his position is sound and right."

Bulkley's talk was given at a meeting of the Gallon Roosevelt Glimer club. Other speakers were E. C. Gallehar, Akron city finance director and a native of Marion county, and Carl Smith of Kenton, secretary to Governor White, discussed state issues.

Brown Pledges G. O. P. Support

MT. GILEAD, O., Oct. 13—The wholehearted support of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown was pledged last night to the entire Republican ticket.

In his first speech since he was defeated by David S. Ingalls for the gubernatorial nomination, Brown called upon his fellow Republicans to "forget petty jealousies and disappointments to personal ambitions" and join in a united fight.

The secretary spoke before a Morrow county rally at Ilesta, where the late President Harding went to school. Tonight he will speak at Richwood.

To prevent any possible misunderstanding of his attitude toward the Republican candidates, Brown announced, "I am supporting the state ticket from Ingalls down."

Paying tribute to President Hoover Brown said, "the realization is dawning upon thinking people of America that the man in the White House has been given every test and has not been found wanting."

Issues Discussed at Upper Sandusky

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 13—National, state and district issues of the campaign were discussed by a group of distinguished Republican speakers here last night.

David S. Ingalls, Republican candidate for governor, outlined his proposed program for Ohio, if elected, and defended himself against recent charges of his Democratic opponent, Governor White.

James Lafferty, former congressman from California and a speaker from national Republican headquarters, spoke in behalf of the national ticket.

District speakers were Congressman Grant E. Mouser Jr. of Marion, seeking reelection from the Eighth district, and Robert L. Mohr of Tiffin, Republican candidate for reelection as state senator from the Thirteenth-Thirty-first district.

Mayor S. N. Clark acted as chairman. Four hundred persons heard the addresses. The High school band and a mixed quartet composed of Mrs. George Denman, Miss Helen Riechel, D. D. Denniger and Edwin Naus, furnished music.

COMMENTS ON BRAND G.O.P. ATTACK DIFFER

Republicans Hurl Criticism at Ohio Congressman; Praise Comes from Democrats.

By The Associated Press

URBANA, O., Oct. 13 — Sharp criticism from Republican leaders and praise from Democrats were expressed today in answer to the declaration of Congressman Charles Brand, Ohio Republican, that his party "deserves defeat and reorganization."

Frank G. Adams, chairman of the Champaign county Republican executive committee, and Sherman S. Deaton, member of the state central committee, said Brand's throwing of support to the Democratic party was "a futile attempt to wreck the party of which he was a member."

Senator Alben W. Barkley, Kentucky Democrat, said, however, "and's action was "an indication of what is happening throughout the United States."

Brand's statement, issued Tuesday night, criticized the Hoover and Coolidge administrations for "opposing any attempt to give agriculture tariff benefits on surplus products," and praised the stand of Franklin D. Roosevelt, presidential nominee of the Democrats.

Brand, who is not a candidate for reelection, was accused by Deaton and Adams of attacking the Republican party "because his own political ambitions have been thwarted."

MARION ENLISTS IN U. S. JOB PROGRAM

Industrial Rehabilitation Plan Outlined at Conference.

which an expansion of the capital expenditures in industry had proven profitable.

Such a movement on the part of industries will prepare them, he said, to meet a competitive situation that is sure to come with the revival of business generally. He also added that statisticians and business leaders throughout the country have reported that the economic trend is definitely upward, and that there soon will be need for the replacements and expansions the industrial rehabilitation subcommittee of the banking and industrial committee is advocating.

And Through Loans

Financial assistance for deserving industries whose production has been hindered by lack of operating capital also can be obtained through the nationwide program, he said. One industry in this district, he said, is scheduled to be given a $200,000 loan which will place 200 men at work and start production of merchandise for which there is a waiting demand.

"The fundamental thing of this whole movement is to get men back to work," Caddell asserted. He explained that the industrial rehabilitation subcommittee was carrying on one of four major phases of the program outlined by the national banking and industrial committee. Other phases, he said, are credit, employment and share-the-work.

"The success of this subcommittee's work doesn't lie entirely in the large industries where extensive replacements should be made," he asserted. "The aggregate of dozens of small replacements of obsolete or worn out equipment, if nothing more than a new motor or tool in a garage, or a new piece of equipment for a small business concern, will reach a sizeable figure."

Outlines Work

It is impossible to calculate the good that can be accomplished through this program, he said. Money, started in circulation, turns over several times, and while the buyer of new machinery and equipment benefits from present low prices the general public benefits from the money released in the movement, he pointed out.

Olin gave a brief outline of the setup of the national banking and industrial committee, and laid the groundwork for Caddell's talk. Industries can now make improvements at costs which would make the expenditure profitable, he said. As an example, he cited the recent move of the Westinghouse plant in Mansfield to construct a $150,000 warehouse. Through its construction, the company will save approximately $50,000 a year, making the warehouse pay for itself in three years, he said.

BERNSTEIN DENIES EMBEZZLING FUNDS

Former Cuyahoga County Deputy Treasurer Takes Stand in Own Defense.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 13—Alex Bernstein, former chief deputy treasurer, today emphatically denied he embezzled money from the county treasurer as he went through a searching cross examination by Prosecutor P. L. A. Leighley.

"Did you embezzle or steal money from the treasury?" asked the prosecutor.

"No, sir, I did not," replied Bernstein.

Bernstein was expected to be the last state witness.

Under cross examination, Bernstein denied he ever used funds from one tax collection to balance the previous collection. The state maintains this was done for many years, and that funds were juggled to conceal shortages that reached as high as $300,000.

INSULL REFUSES TO GIVE UP PASSPORT

Greek Government Investigating Authority for Detention of Utility Magnate.

By The Associated Press

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 13—Samuel Insull, under indictment in Chicago in connection with the collapse of his utilities interests, refused today to surrender his passport to the American consul until he had consulted his lawyers.

The Greek government today ordered an inquiry to establish the responsibility for the detention of Insull, claiming he was held without authority.

Insull, free of police surveillance, said Greece was a "great country" and that he might stay there a long time. He asked his wife and son, both in Paris, to join him. Insull's attorneys appeared confident his extradition would not be obtained because the extradition treaty between the United States and Greece has not been completed.

Coolidge Logic.

Calvin Coolidge realizes the importance of his unqualified support of President Hoover. He is familiar with rumors of his probable nomination for the presidency in 1936. He understands the peculiar responsibilities of his position as the outstanding Republican in the nation, next to the party's active leader. He is conscious of his deserved reputation for cool, reliable, reasoning.

His speech in New York City Tuesday night is the outstanding utterance of the Republican campaign, next to the President's Des Moines address. Like all speeches in Mr. Hoover's behalf should be, and like most of them have been, it was an uncompromising appeal to reason. In it, significantly, were more vehemence and more expressions of impatience than are to be found in any of Mr. Coolidge's speeches in his own behalf. That the former President and potential nominee is willing to give more than lip service to the Hoover candidacy is indicated plainly.

Mr. Coolidge has a way of getting at things directly, with a minimum of preparatory effort. What are the chances of getting improvement by a change of administration, he asks? What is there to the charge that the Republican administration has not done everything possible? The answer is characteristic of the unspectacular former president. "If there were anything which a government could do to prevent the decline in business the world has experienced it must be that some government somewhere would have been wise enough to apply a remedy. If no such remedy anywhere has been found, the inference is practically certain that the present economic condition was brought about by forces no government could foresee and prevent," he reasons.

Governor Roosevelt's campaign statements on tariff and the "forgotten man" afforded Mr. Coolidge his best opportunities for logical utterance. In criticising the Democratic candidate's proposal for reciprocal tariff agreements, Mr. Coolidge did the best job in his address. Backed by national experience he explained concisely what the Roosevelt policy would mean. Democrats, themselves, do not view the possibilities with any relish. Their candidate has made a dangerous and embarrassing promise.

Replying to Governor Roosevelt's direct attempt to capitalize discontent in his advantage—his frequent references to the "forgotten man"—Mr. Coolidge once more pointed out the facts of reality to the Democratic partisans and sympathizers who have assumed to criticize the administration on this score. His reply was not drawn from political mystery; it dealt only with the record of relief administered by the government by recommendation of the President and under the approval of both parties in congress. It is a weird campaign in which the challenging party alternately takes credit for what has been done and then castigates the defending party for having had a part in it.

Democrats know as well as Republicans know that the United States operates under a system of capitalism. Responsibility for employment rests with private enterprise. When employment disappears it can be restored only by helping the enterprise which makes it possible. But Democrats have chosen to ignore this for the sake of appealing to discontent in those quarters where the mass of the voting power lies. They will not reply to Mr. Coolidge's first assertion that "the power of the resources of the United States government has been marshaled to support the credit of the key concerns of our economic structure, always for the purpose of serving the ordinary run of people." No reply is possible.

"It is very easy to criticise after the event," Mr. Coolidge commented. Having had the experience of the presidency, he has extraordinary understanding of the enormity of the problems that surged in on President Hoover during his four years in office. It is not hard to understand why a man qualified in experience as Mr. Coolidge is qualified should view with deep concern the attempt to repudiate policies and actions of his successor which he knows to be sound. "Before we decide that we want to have a change we ought to determine what the chances are of securing any improvement. We shall be most likely to find progress in holding fast to that which experience has proven to be sound and just and true," is his judicious conclusion.

Invention.

Frank McErlane's name never will be inscribed on any rolls of honor. He never will be lauded for his deeds, not even at his funeral. Men and women once his friends are almost as glad that he is dead and out of the way as are his enemies.

McErlane is reputed to have been the inventor of that prime device of criminal terrorism, the one-way ride. Nine years ago, as a hijacker, he is supposed to have started the hoodlum fad of automobile murder when he killed two defectives men securely bound in the rear end of his sedan.

Known to have been a desperate criminal, known to have been a murderer, his nearly under suspicion and unable to control a nature only a little less vicious than a wild beast's and a thousand times more destructive, McErlane was too smart to linger in jail. When he couldn't help himself, others helped him. Time after time the state was forced to confess before the people that it "had nothing on him."

His slayers must apologize, Al Capone, Chicago was his scene of operations. He never made the outstanding success of violence that Capone did, but he never was sent to a federal penitentiary, either. He was less a business man than an irresponsible killer, victim of the commodity in which he dealt. His own friends were anxious to get him out of the way. His enemies, too, were anxious, but McErlane had the distinction of dying in a hospital bed.

It was no satisfaction to him, because in his dying delirium he was victim of all the craven fear of reprisal that his violence had stored up for him. The police failed to convict him, but he wasn't immune to his own disorderly life. When a black chapter in American social history is written, somewhere there should be the name of Frank McErlane, who proved how dangerous criminals could be when the hands of orderly society were tied by corruption, fear and the very legislation intended to be of assistance to it.

Valuable Recruits.

The unprecedented activity of young voters in Marion county is one of the most encouraging and promising local developments in this year's campaign. No time in the past can be recalled that brought young men and young women into such a prominent role in political affairs here.

The purpose of the two party organizations is, of course, to strengthen their cause by the addition of as much of this new force and influence as possible. The results achieved will be more than merely beneficial to partisan interests. These young people are going to be helpful factors in promoting good government and efficient public service in addition to performing their work as party backers.

Some parents—too many of them—advise their sons and daughters to "stay out of politics." They mean, of course, that the trickery and pitfalls of the game should be avoided. That can be done easily even though they participate in the "game," one of the most interesting and important open to the youth of the land.

These youngsters can be taught and trained to play politics as it should be played, fairly and squarely for the public's good, and if they follow that course they can and will achieve honor and distinction. In fact, it is only by keeping the public welfare in mind that real success in the field of politics is possible. This is true now, more than at any time in the past. The American electorate, provided with improved modern means of being thoroughly informed on issues, and weary of political buncombe and hogwash, is exercising increasing intelligence in choosing between sincerity and pretense in the selection of its public officials.

A Lady Called "Texas."

When the generation that's in the saddle now has retired to its easy chairs, a lady called "Texas" will be a likely topic for twinkle-eyed reminiscences. As much as any of the notables of the world of grease paint and strong lights, which provides declining generations with amusing memories, she is typical of the times. Grandchildren assuredly will be amazed that life could have produced such a personality "back there" when people were just learning to ride in airplanes.

This remarkable lady, symbol of a weaker sex grown strong and capable, has just revealed herself in a peculiarly charming mood—charming because it makes a contrast of softness with her adamantine reputation. She is going to be married, which is by no means a new experience for her. But this time she sighs audibly for public benefit that she's in love for the first time in her life. "I've got it bad," is her appealing confession of the true circumstances.

Thus does the extraordinary woman who was the essence of a glad, mad period in the history of changing tastes in entertainment admit her vulnerability. The identity of the future Mr. Texas Guinan—and when else was it so easy to play with the idea of matriarchy?—is not nearly so important as his conquest. "Hello, sucker!" isn't a greeting that many women would be able to forget. It takes a man of some perception to see the fine human qualities from which it arises.

Some day, some clever fellow should explain in detail just why it was a Texas Guinan flourished and profited in our times. That, too, will interest grandchildren. And in the meantime, whoever you are, congratulations.

Comment of the Press

MALEFACTORS AND MOTORCARS.

Crime, aided and abetted by modern inventions, is becoming too rampant in Great Britain to be viewed with complacency by law-loving citizens of that country, to whose feeling for decency and fair play the increase in quick-get-away robberies accompanied by cowardly violence is traditionally abhorrent.

A vigorous editorial in the London Observer indicates no "defeatist" attitude on the part of Britons, nor any supine disposition calmly to hold up their hands at the behest of the desperate criminals. It recognizes "the new situation that has arisen as between society and those who would prey upon it," because of the easy facilities extended to the malefactor by the automobile and by the latest inventions of natural science which the ingenious and unscrupulous thief is quick to adopt. Then it makes a novel and striking suggestion.

This is that no person known to the police as criminal should be allowed to own, operate or ride in a motorcar. As his all-too-efficient means of escape the automobile has become just as much a part of the offender's equipment as the jimmy and the torch are that of the safebreaker's. Therefore, argues the Observer, the juxtaposition of such a person and a motorcar should be considered sufficient reason for his arrest. Every driving license should bear a photograph of its holder and no license should be granted to a person with prison records.

At first blush the proposal bears a threatening severity, and the cry will be raised in some quarters that it might work hardship on the reformed ex-convict or even prevent the malefactor from entering upon some quite legitimate enterprise. It should not be impossible, however, to make provision, through parole boards or similar avenues, for such exceptional cases. And rather pertinently the point is taken that it is no greater hardship for the lawbreaker to use the street car or train than it is for millions of his law-abiding fellow citizens.

Whatever may be thought of the practicability of the Observer's proposals, it is refreshing to note the apparent determination of Britishers to strike at the evil before it becomes deeply rooted, and to permit no procrastinating apathy to prevail whereby lawlessness may reach the point where it dares openly and insolently to flaunt its contempt of the rights of society.—Christian Science Monitor.

Daily Guide to Health

BY DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

Benefits of Health-Saving Science.

There is consolation in knowing that a recent health survey reports a marked reduction in the number of cases of infantile paralysis. It is just about a year ago that we had a mild epidemic of this dreaded disease, and even now Philadelphia is troubled about it. Many mothers have been unduly alarmed, fearing that the country might again suffer from an epidemic similar to the one experienced in 1916.

During the past summer months we have had mild outbreaks of scarlet fever, measles and diphtheria, while in some communities an unusual number of cases of typhoid fever was reported. But, as a whole, the health of the nation has been comparatively good.

In what I have said I do not mean, of course, that acute infectious diseases have disappeared, or that the dangers of childhood and adult life have been removed. We have not reached this ideal state of affairs, but things are getting better.

There are infectious diseases, nevertheless, that continue to take a heavy toll of innocent young lives, and these tragedies are particularly disturbing because many of them might have been prevented.

We are indebted to and should make greater use of the brilliant work of scientists and medical research men who have discovered cures for and means of prevention of certain diseases. I refer particularly to such ailments as diphtheria, scarlet fever, smallpox and typhoid fever.

Unfortunately, many mothers worry over the health of their children but do not take advantage of the protection that is available. Much has been accomplished in the prevention and treatment of certain diseases of childhood, but these diseases can be prevented only when the mother reports to the doctor. She must go with her children periodically for health examinations.

I can not overemphasize the importance of vaccination against smallpox and inoculation against diphtheria. In communities where scarlet fever is particularly prevalent, protection and prevention can be promoted by the administration of scarlet fever antitoxin.

All medical men are familiar with the value and importance of recent advances made in medicine. You readers should all take advantage of their knowledge and protect your household from all diseases that are preventable. You may have the consolation, too, of knowing that intensive studies are being made to master other infectious diseases, particularly pneumonia.

Take stock of your health and the health of your family. Precautions should be taken before illness knocks at your door. Health is of paramount importance. If you have health guard it and protect yourself against its destruction by infection and disease.

A Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Oct. 13 — When Comptroller General J. R. McCarl told Secretary Stimson recently that American delegates to the Geneva Disarmament conference must travel on an American ship there was nothing to do but obey.

No matter whether it's a cabinet officer or government clerk, when McCarl makes a decision, avoiding expenditures that's all there is to it, for he carries the most absolute authority in his field of any one in Washington, except the President.

Congress made his authority as absolute as possible, and he is responsible to no one but that body. Appointed in 1921 by President Harding, he is to stay in office until 1936. After that he is out, for he can't be reappointed.

It's McCarl's job as Uncle Sam's auditor to see that the government pays just what it owes and not a cent more; to see that any overpayments are refunded, and to make sure that appropriations are properly and legally spent.

It is the latter that gives him much of his authority in dictating to cabinet officers and the like.

McCarl, however, is little of the dictator personally. Clean shaven, under the average height, even tempered and mild of manner, he is the type that can fight and smile at the same time. He is a thorough student of his job, arrives at his office early in the morning and is one of the last to leave at night.

He is never too busy, however, to sit down and talk things over with a visitor.

Since congress passed the economy bill, his job has been one of the most trying and difficult ones in the capital. It fell to him to interpret and rule on the numberless controversial sections of the bill and how they were to be applied. He rivaled the supreme court in decisions when the bill finally became law.

Senator Norris of Nebraska brought McCarl to Washington as his secretary years ago. He and the senator live in the same town of McCook.

Then barely out of his twenties, he took an immediate interest in the doings of congress. He was so well posted that the Republicans chose him as secretary of the national congressional committee. He was one of the directing heads in the victorious Republican congressional fight of 1920.

The next year congress passed the budget law and Harding named him the first comptroller general.

Daily Talk to Parents

BY ALICE HUDSON FEALE

CAUSE OF A TANTRUM.

A mother asked advice about her two and one-half year old daughter who suddenly behaved in a most unusual way.

At the gate of the park as they were leaving the child demanded to be carried and when her mother refused, because she did not want to "spoil" her, she sat down weeping upon the pavement.

Only after a long talk did she at last consent to "walk the short distance to the car."

When they alighted she again demanded passionately to be carried. The crying continued then for a long hour at home and stopped only at last when she fell into an exhausted sleep.

Asked further details of the incident, the mother explained that she did not carry the child because the distance was too far. Unconsciously here the mother contradicted herself. The walk was so short that the child ought to walk. It was so long that she could not carry her.

"I wasn't a bit angry," she continued. "I just talked quietly and I'm sure she had no idea how I really felt." Another contradiction, as unconscious as the first!

It developed further that she had quarreled with her husband that morning and that her first words when he returned home were: "I just can't do a thing with your daughter today!"

The phrase "your daughter" shows that the mother had thought of her husband and child together. The irritation with the one had doubtless been carried over to the other. It is highly probable that her refusal to carry the child was due to this rather than to any of her conscious, rational explanations.

This irritation the child rightly had sensed as a withdrawal of love, and it was this which primarily caused her violent and unusual emotional upheaval.

Highlights of Ohio History

OHIO IN THE CABINET.

Twenty Ohioans have been honored with appointment to presidential cabinets. First of the line was Return Jonathan Meigs, postmaster general in President Madison's cabinet and also in President Monroe's.

Later came three secretaries of state: five secretaries of the treasury; six secretaries of war; five attorneys general; four postmasters general; two secretaries of the interior.

No Ohioan ever held the cabinet position of secretary of the navy or of agriculture, commerce or labor.

Thomas Ewing, John Sherman, Edwin M. Stanton, Alphonso Taft and John McLean held more than one position in presidential cabinets—Sherman as secretary of state and of the treasury; Ewing as secretary of the treasury and of the interior; Stanton as attorney general and secretary of war; Alphonso Taft as secretary of war and attorney general, and John McLean as secretary of war and postmaster general.

Europe Day by Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

Venice, Oct. 13—Mention of a gondolier conjured in my thought a romantically erect Apollo, sashed in red, velveteen tam aback, collar in a John Barrymore flair, gently tugging at a long oar and bursting at intervals into full-throated song. The picture is very ungondolierish.

The gondolier combines all the petty deceits of the lowest grade New York taxi driver, plus something dandy in local chicanery. He usually is filthy, rarely agreeable, and almost always a skinflint. Each one I have engaged appears bloated with grievance and given to surly muttering.

The Piazetta, known to natives as the Molo, is the biggest gondola stand, although one may engage them almost anywhere, in the manner of a taxi, by stepping to the canal edge and lifting a hand. But there is a bewildering custom of the gondolier you hail passing you on to another.

I'm not jerry to this what-ever-it-is, but I know it is a phase of trickery. A jungle-like telegraphy races up and down the canals, and if a fare insists firmly upon hiring some favorite oarsman his name swings from gondola to gondola. And soon he glides to you out of nowhere.

No other class in Europe has such a pronounced passion for bicker. Their compelling urge in life is to be overpaid and they usually are. Off duty they spend time in the wine shops, where there never is sound of laughter, but instead raillery, abuse and high argument.

It is but fair to note, every gondola has its tariff posted plainly in several languages. But they take advantage of the fact few strangers notice this. The seasoned traveler goes by this price list, tips accordingly, and the gondolier offers no remonstrance. But he is uncanny in spotting the novitiate and takes every mean advantage of ignorance and timidity.

Even lower than the gondolier is the rampino—a discarded and venerable scarmouch who hooks the gondola to various steps. When a gondolier loses his agility he becomes a rampino—a beseeching mooocher whose hat is always held out for a coin and whose lips await the butt of your cigar or cigaret.

But Venetians like their gondoliers, using the gondola as we use the ferryboat. Tourists have been over-paying and spoiling them for years. Natives pay exact fare, tipping never entering their thoughts. And slap them silly if they back talk.

Every gondolier is a wily capper for some local enterprise, shop, hotel or cafe from which he receives his "squeeze." Another specialty is drumming up trade for the glass blowers. At the glass works they start in trying to sell you a memorial window and usually wind up selling you a string of beads—with mutual expressions of esteem.

This afternoon, we visited a glass furnace at Murano—the hottest inferno I have graced, up to now. Perspiring wizards magically convert molten blobs into sparkling vases. It is an art I never saw before and is fascinating. They dip a hollow iron rod into a glowing mass and, with a series of twists and breath blows like an illusionist's passes, convert the liquid glass into incredibly fragile and spherical gadgets. All the time they chaff with each other. One indeed, in performing his convolutions never removed a cigar from his lips.

Returning from Murano, we paused a moment where Byron likely halted before he lutanized:

I stood in Venice on the Bridge of Sighs,
A palace had a prison on each hand.

But it was, for me, an unfertile Parnassus. No obscure fumble struggled to foliate in burnished lines. Instead, I filled with a disgust for Billy, who has become the parking place for all unemployed fleas in Venice. He trots a few steps, pivots on one hip and, with the dead pan vacuity of Stan Laurel and the bewildering blink of Charles Butterworth, tries to unloose the newest pest. He's readying himself for a spell canal bucking, by the way.

Floating home from an evening of opera-yelling with my wife, resigning ourselves to the impenetrable influences of a Venetian night, the stark grandeur inspired me all of a sudden to let go a clear "O, sole mio!" Across the shivery expanse, an American voice jeered: "I'll be glad when you're dead, you rascal you!"—Copyright, 1932, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Nowadays, a man's idea of ardent love-making appears to be to go into the silence, assume an encouraging expression, and wait patiently for the girl to tell him that he loves her.

Of course, men made love with far more grace and ardor in the old, pre-war days. But then, the wine was better, the music was sweeter and the women were harder to please.

To a man, the sweetest part of a kiss is the anticipation; to a woman—the memory.

The instructor eyed him witheringly. "In that case you immediately report to Peter and await instructions."

The company director shook his head. "My dear man," he said, "there are hundreds of ways of making money, but only one that is honest." The company promoter looked puzzled. "What's that?" he asked. "Ah," smiled the other, "I thought you wouldn't know."

The Stars Say—

For Friday, Oct. 14

ACCORDING to this day's stellar operations there is likely to be a sudden and abrupt termination of old conditions, ventures and engagements, including possibly temporary loss of employment or the good will of employers or of those in places of power and authority. There is a sign of much commotion, stirring about and change, radically affecting the affairs and future interests.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of sudden and abrupt visitations, with breaking up of old conditions and launching into the new and strange. The personal affairs may develop an intriguing or peculiar angle, or the tendency may be to mystical expression. A child born on this day may be restless, unsettled, fond of the unusual and the adventurous, albeit mystical and aspirational.

STOP COLDS QUICK

—in the Dry Stage!

A cold should be treated promptly the first 24 hours. This is why: A cold ordinarily passes through three stages. The Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. Once a cold gets beyond the first stage it is far more difficult to relieve.

Relief comes quickly if you take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine immediately — because this cold remedy does the four things necessary: It opens the bowels—kills the cold germs and fever in the system—relieves the headache and grippy feeling—tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

No worry about what you're taking when you take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. Does not upset the stomach or make the head ring. For years Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine has been the stand-by of thousands in the treatment of colds and grippe. You're playing safe when you take this famous cold tablet! Every drug store in America sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Handy, pocket-size box, cellophane-wrapped.

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
If you feel down and sunk and the world looks purple, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.
For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The cause is your bowels don't get enough bile into your bowels daily.
If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You have constipation, bad breath and your whole system is poisoned.
It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, gentle, yet positive vegetable extracts, mandrake and podophyllin to stimulate the bile flow to the bowels.

"You give your word—I drive you over to the junction—you put up any story you like to account for your absence—and not later than tomorrow you buzz up to town and tell old Page you've decided to settle $150,000 on Rosamund It's as easy as falling off a log"

Jervis leaned against the rock He was thinking hard It had been in his mind that when the tide rose he could hold on to the iron bars which divided the inner and outer caves.

If the bars didn't reach to the roof he might get over when the water was high enough and, once in the outer cave he would have a pretty good chance of getting away when the tide went down

He could float for hours in this warm water with the bars to hold on to He reckoned that the water would be up to his waist in another half hour or so He might have to hold on for five or six hours Well he ought to be able to do that.

Thinking it over" said Robert Leonard You've not got too much time Better speed up the thinking machine"

He picked up the torch again and sent the beam glittering down upon the pool There wasn't a pool any longer, there was one smooth blackness of water—and the edge of it was level with the rock on which Jervis stood

The light shifted and showed that smooth blackness everywhere It came back again and rested upon the edge of the rock a yard away from his feet It showed the water and the rock in a silver ring, and as Jervis looked at the ring the water lifted very gently and flowed over the rock The beam swung upwards and the torch was set down again

The light had never touched the bars Did they go up to the roof—or didn't they"

"Well are you going to come to terms?" said Robert Leonard

Jervis said, "No," almost absently His mind was on the bars and the question of whether it would be possible to get over them and into the outer cave He could do it if there was a space But was there a space? He became aware that Leonard was swearing at him

Do you mean that 'No,' you fool?

Oh yes

If being absent and a bit dreamy was the way to annoy Leonard, then Jervis was prepared to go on being dreamy till all was blue It was less wearing than letting oneself go——easier——easier—— too easy

He found himself on his hands and knees in an inch or two of water He must have turned giddy Leonards' voice echoed above him in the dark

"All right—you've had your chance If you won't take it, that lets me out. You've only to stay obstinate and I scoop the lot. Drown, and be damned to you!"

The gate at the mouth of the passage banged with a violent metallic sound that filled the cave with clanging echoes

Jervis sat in two inches of water, and waited for the noise to stop.

To Be Continued.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Carolyn Is Rescued When the Shack Is Attacked, Too late To Save Marion, Who Had Just Been Spirited Away in the Night.

As that high-pitched scream from the shack tore through the silence there was a fraction of a second in which I think we in the circular woodland glade stopped breathing Then Ronald's fingers gripped my arm so tightly that I came near echoing the shriek we had heard

"Did you hear that?" he demanded hoarsely "Did you hear Marion calling me just as I heard her there back in the hotel? Will you let me go now? You must!"

He was shaking me to and fro now and I knew he had no idea of what he was doing With a quick twist I freed myself and gripped his arms in turn

"When you can control yourself, you may go." I said, purposely making my voice icy "If I let you leave here in your present state, you would be no good to Marion or anybody else."

Who Had Screamed?

He quieted in an instant, but his high-flung head, his quick breathing and the tenseness of his posture reminded me of a spirited horse waiting the signal to be off

"You must rid yourself of one idea," I told him. "There were no words in that scream, and there is no certainty that it was Marion's voice It was the cry of a young woman I think, but it was so quickly suppressed that even that deduction was doubtful, and it certainly was impossible to recognize the identity of the voice It could be either Marion or your sister"

The sound of axes and sledges upon wood and glass resounded suddenly in the woods and Ronald's voice was suddenly savage.

"Let me go!" he snarled, twisting himself loose. It's either my sister or Marion who screamed just then, and I'm standing here."

But as he turned from me, poised for flight, he found his way barred When my father had signaled the man Brown I do not know, but the tall, sinewy figure stood resolutely in front of the frantic boy

Steady, lad" my father said, You're needed there, and you shall go, but I must tell you where. Brown, used to these woods and to that scream was outside the house. Judging noises in them, tells me He will show you a way by which you can cut around to the back and not be seen Don't you waste any time trying to get into the house There are plenty of men here Now be off Stay with him, Brown."

The two figures were gone upon the word and my father turned to the rest of us

"Richard, to your post" he said, "and the rest stand close to the trees We do not know what second—"

The crashing noises suddenly had ceased and we realized that there had been no sounds of combat but from the inside of the house came Harry Underwood's voice, which I think can be heard for a mile when he exerts all his strength.

"Marion! Carolyn!" he called. "It's all right Let us in"

We did not hear the response Nothing but a bull-of-Bashan voice or a scream would have carried to us. But the next moment Harry's voice rose again

"Carolyn! Where? When? Who?"

There was another instant's silence while Mary's fingers and mine, interlaced, almost crushed each other Then Mr Underwood's voice again

"Come on men with me"

We could imagine the rush of feet that followed although we could not hear them. Then there was silence for a little, followed by a sound that sent my hand to my throat in mingled pity and terror.

It was the sound of broken hearted sobbing that came to us, faintly at first, then steadily growing louder as it neared us. Then we heard Hugh Crawford's voice, grave and tender.

"Steady little girl! You're very near Mrs. Graham now, and we'll find Marion!"

"Richard!" My father's voice sent the call across the glade "Come back here quickly."

The chief was in action again and I knew that his keen intelligence was sending out queries in all directions, weighing, rejecting, changing his campaign in an instant to meet this astonishing new condition.

For when the next minute Carolyn half led and half carried by Hugh stumbled into the clearing and my outstretched arms clasped her and held her tightly, she cried hysterically:

"Oh what have they done with Marion" They took her away out of the room just before we heard the airplane go over, and about 10 minutes afterward I heard her scream Oh, why didn't I rush out with her, even if she's killed me for it""

Oh, just a pound of cooking fat.
Why, I wouldn't use anything but Crisco. I KNOW Crisco is digestible.
Goodness, I'll bet it's this ordinary fat that's been giving John indigestion.
Mrs. Williams tells me Crisco is a digestible, sweet-tasting fat.
It sure is. Once you try Crisco, you'll know the difference.
